Distribution Service and Agriculture

OVER 10 great agricultural states of the Middle West, the far-flung distribution system of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is rendering an essential service to 30 million people.

The immense value of this service may be visualized when it is known that more than one-half of the farms in the states served are equipped with automobiles. The Census Bureau report on this point is as follows:

|                   |       |
|-------------------|-------|
| Indiana           | 46.4% |
| Illinois          | 53.0% |
| Michigan          | 40.2% |
| Wisconsin         | 49.6% |
| Minnesota         | 57.1% |
| Iowa              | 73.1% |
| Missouri          | 31.0% |
| North Dakota      | 56.7% |
| South Dakota      | 69.4% |
| Kansas            | 62.0% |
| Average           | 53.8% |
| Average for U. S. | 30.7% |

In other words, the need for gasoline and lubricants, in percentage per farm, in the states served by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is nearly twice that of the United States as a whole.

On the farm, petroleum products are an absolute necessity. The farmer is preoccupied with his task—the mighty task of raising food for the world. He must have petroleum products when and where he needs them.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is prepared to give a dependable, always-on-the-job service which the exigencies of farming demand. 6600 tank wagons are in operation this summer of 1922. These tank wagons make deliveries to the farmer's door. When necessary they serve him in the field—at his work. They reach him at dependable intervals and serve him with dependable products. Only a vast, centrally administered organization could render this effective type of service.
